

Lesser Invoking Ritual of the Pentagram (LIRP)

The Lesser Rituals of the Pentagram, or commonly called Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram, and the Lesser Invoking Ritual of the Pentagram, (LBRP/LIRP) were the only actual rituals taught to and used by the Outer Order of the traditional Golden Dawn. This Invoking Pentagram Ritual should be used as a Daily Ritual which will help invoke the energy and call the spiritual forces into ones temple or ritual space.

(Say:) "For about me flames the pentagram, and in the column shines the Six-rayed Star."

Repeat The Qabalistic Cross.

Note: A few of the benefits that may be obtained from the L.I.R.P.; it will aid in grounding mental and emotional conditions, it will allow the student to call forth the four elements within his circle, and the Zelator will have the ability to commune with the four great Archangels. A few basic rules should be kept in mind when performing the ritual. While in the learning stage, it is advisable not to perform the L.I.R.P. before going to sleep. The energies invoked may be too potent for a novice and therefore may disturb one's peace of mind, making it hard to get any rest. Keep in mind that the Archangels are to be facing the Zelator in the ritual, and lastly, that it is not necessary to perform the L.B.R.P. after the L.I.R.P. under normal circumstances. What is meant by normal circumstances is to say that other than conditions of using the ritual for balancing, grounding and conversing with the Archangels, it is usually not necessary to banish afterwards.
